Dreams are made of.

He received at UW-Stout. It opened doors to a job that he interacted daily with the world-renowned soccer management, Elert landed a full-time salaried position at UW-Stout has been invaluable to her and was instrumental in helping her to achieve her goals and education she received at UW-Stout

Chad Ellert

Maltee McMahon was recently awarded the Woman of Color Award from the University of Wisconsin College Personnel Association at their annual convention held in Wisconsin Dells in October 2003. This award recognizes public four- and two-year colleges as well as the technical college system in Wisconsin. Broyum received the Outstanding Program Award for the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire Counseling Services Web page and the Annebelle E. Wolf Award for Outstanding Service to College Student Personnel. The Wolf award is given to the individual with at least seven years of experience in higher education and who has had a lasting impact and contribution in the profession.

Broyum received a plaque in recognition of the awards at the Wisconsin College Personnel Association's national convention held in Philadelphia, April 2004. Broyum, appreciative of the honors he has received, is enjoying his 31st year at the UW-Eau Claire Counseling Center.

Kristian Gamble

Kristian Gamble ’97 began his fascination with art at a very young age. As a child in Houston and Bay City, Texas, he remembers the endless drawings he created on his schoolbooks, desks, walls and other surfaces. He felt that the clothing could tell the stories of their wearers.

Visit the Stillwater Historic Courthouse, and you will be able to see Barb modeling her vintage clothing while serving as a greeter and guide.

Mattie McMahon

McMahon received her award at the annual Women of Color Award Brunch Ceremony held in conjunction with the 28th Annual UW System Women’s Studies Conference at UW-Stout in October 2004. McMahon earned her bachelor’s degree in business administration and her master’s degree in management technology at UW-Stout. As a student, she led the university’s International Club, promoting diversity and organizing international fairs and dinners for the campus and community.

Working as a director at First Call for Help and the Family Resource Center, McMahon initiated a variety of programs to address issues, such as domestic violence and operating drives, which are collections of

Richard K. Boyum

Richard K. Boyum ’69 received two prestigious awards from the Wisconsin College Personnel Association at their annual convention held in Wisconsin Dells in October 2003. This year he received the awards of public four- and two-year colleges as well as the technical college sys-

Richard K. Boyum

Richard K. Boyum ’69 received two prestigious awards from the Wisconsin College Personnel Association at their annual convention held in Wisconsin Dells in October 2003. This year he received the awards of public four- and two-year colleges as well as the technical college sys-

Kristian Gamble

Kristian Gamble ’97 began his fascination with art at a very young age. As a child in Houston and Bay City, Texas, he remembers the endless drawings he created on his schoolbooks, desks, walls and other surfaces. He felt that the clothing could tell the stories of their wearers.

Visit the Stillwater Historic Courthouse, and you will be able to see Barb modeling her vintage clothing while serving as a greeter and guide.

Mattie McMahon

McMahon received her award at the annual Women of Color Award Brunch Ceremony held in conjunction with the 28th Annual UW System Women’s Studies Conference at UW-Stout in October 2004. McMahon earned her bachelor’s degree in business administration and her master’s degree in management technology at UW-Stout. As a student, she led the university’s International Club, promoting diversity and organizing international fairs and dinners for the campus and community.

Working as a director at First Call for Help and the Family Resource Center, McMahon initiated a variety of programs to address issues, such as domestic violence and operating drives, which are collections of

Richard K. Boyum

Richard K. Boyum ’69 received two prestigious awards from the Wisconsin College Personnel Association at their annual convention held in Wisconsin Dells in October 2003. This year he received the awards of public four- and two-year colleges as well as the technical college sys-

Kristian Gamble

Kristian Gamble ’97 began his fascination with art at a very young age. As a child in Houston and Bay City, Texas, he remembers the endless drawings he created on his schoolbooks, desks, walls and other surfaces. He felt that the clothing could tell the stories of their wearers.

Visit the Stillwater Historic Courthouse, and you will be able to see Barb modeling her vintage clothing while serving as a greeter and guide.

Mattie McMahon

McMahon received her award at the annual Women of Color Award Brunch Ceremony held in conjunction with the 28th Annual UW System Women’s Studies Conference at UW-Stout in October 2004. McMahon earned her bachelor’s degree in business administration and her master’s degree in management technology at UW-Stout. As a student, she led the university’s International Club, promoting diversity and organizing international fairs and dinners for the campus and community.

Working as a director at First Call for Help and the Family Resource Center, McMahon initiated a variety of programs to address issues, such as domestic violence and operating drives, which are collections of

Richard K. Boyum

Richard K. Boyum ’69 received two prestigious awards from the Wisconsin College Personnel Association at their annual convention held in Wisconsin Dells in October 2003. This year he received the awards of public four- and two-year colleges as well as the technical college sys-

Kristian Gamble

Kristian Gamble ’97 began his fascination with art at a very young age. As a child in Houston and Bay City, Texas, he remembers the endless drawings he created on his schoolbooks, desks, walls and other surfaces. He felt that the clothing could tell the stories of their wearers.

Visit the Stillwater Historic Courthouse, and you will be able to see Barb modeling her vintage clothing while serving as a greeter and guide.

Mattie McMahon

McMahon received her award at the annual Women of Color Award Brunch Ceremony held in conjunction with the 28th Annual UW System Women’s Studies Conference at UW-Stout in October 2004. McMahon earned her bachelor’s degree in business administration and her master’s degree in management technology at UW-Stout. As a student, she led the university’s International Club, promoting diversity and organizing international fairs and dinners for the campus and community.

Working as a director at First Call for Help and the Family Resource Center, McMahon initiated a variety of programs to address issues, such as domestic violence and operating drives, which are collections of

Richard K. Boyum

Richard K. Boyum ’69 received two prestigious awards from the Wisconsin College Personnel Association at their annual convention held in Wisconsin Dells in October 2003. This year he received the awards of public four- and two-year colleges as well as the technical college sys-